

Department of Information Technology

Program Specific Outcome

The students perusing this course are taught the fundamental concepts and emerging technologies in the field of computer and are thus prepared with the necessary computer skills required for jobs in industry, business or government. They get equipped with the healthy practices and efficient use of information technology services, tools and modern devices.